"Value Received" in Furnishings

For the Office

You can dismiss at once all thought of high prices here, because the busy business man is as keen for "values" as the nipping air of a frosty morning.

Neither he nor we have time for haggling—he wants no arguments or whys and wherefores and therefore everything is marked in plain figures at prices which are based on full "value received."

Every new time, labor and money-saving idea finds ready expression in our office furnishing stocks.

All woods are represented from which a man can quickly match his present furnishings.

Quality is a prime factor of every piece—the workmanship is reliable in every vital part.

FAMOUS TEMPLE OFFERED FOR SALE

Dedicated To "Jezreelites" at Chatham, England, But Is Still Unfinished.—Articles of Their Faith.

London, Jan. 4.—The famous Jezreel temple at Chatham has been offered for sale.

This building, which is a conspicuous landmark, was begun in 1882 by a British soldier named White, who, after an attack of sunstroke in India, proclaimed himself the prophet of a new religion and adopted the name of "James Hereshon Jezreel."

An article of the new faith was that none of its disciples should visit a marble, and the Jezreelites rapidly became known in the locality and beyond it. "Jezreel" gathered hundreds of followers and organized a little colony of farms and workshops, out of which he made a fortune. He began the construction of the temple with the object of accommodating 5,000 of the faithful out of the 144,000 who were to be saved when the end of the world came.

He promised his followers that he would live forever, but he died before the tower was completed. It remains unfinished to-day despite the fact that over $200,000 was spent on it. The building remained unoccupied until 1906, when it was taken by an American named Mills, who adopted the title of "Prince Michael" and proclaimed himself the successor of "Jezreel." A little over three years ago "Prince Michael's" followers were evicted, having failed to pay the rent to the owner, a contractor who had taken over the building on the death of "Jezreel."

How fleeting is the glory of the modern fighting ship illustrated in the case of the British battleship dreadnought, the building of which as a result of the report of the British naval attaches who accompanied Admiral Togo's fleet in the first naval battles in the Gulf of Pechili against the Pacific fleet of Russia, caused a revolution in battleship construction.

This once proud vessel is now considered so far out of date that she is being removed from the First Battle Squadron and assigned to the Fourth Battle Squadron, which is based on Gibraltar. The dreadnought has been in commission less than six years, and while not considered obsolete is more completely outclassed by the latest ships than were the pre-dreadnoughts destroyed by her when she was first built.

Three weeks ago the battleship King George V. was commissioned. She has a broadside of no less than 14,000 pounds. This gives her a superiority of 100 per cent. over the dreadnought, which was only 28 per cent. better than the last pre-dreadnoughts. The new armored cruisers even are 50 per cent. more powerful than the dreadnought. No British armored ship is reckoned effective to-day that has been launched over 18 years.

At the battle of Trafalgar the 27 British ships averaged 27 years from the date of launching. The Victory herself was 50 years old.

The strike of the workers on the Northeastern railway caused by the action of the company in reducing an engine driver after he had been convicted of drunkenness, and which lasted less than a week, cost the Northern shipping trades over $5,000,000.

The trouble came at a time when there was an extraordinary rush of trade before the holidays, which was interrupted by an unusual and pressing demand for coal by Russia and other European powers, who were putting in stocks against the possibility of war.

It was not only the shipping trades that lost heavily, however, for the men and men in collateral trades lost nearly a week's work as the company could not accept freight, while the railway men themselves were mulcted in fines which it will take them some weeks to pay.

This has left a wound and many of the men, dissatisfied with the action of their committee in signing the company's terms, wished a general strike ordered. Better counsels prevailed, however, the men who have gone on strike against the advice of the union officials, on this occasion listening to them. There is unrest among the men on most of the railways of the country. They complain that they are persecuted, that any man found to be active in trade unionism is unfairly treated by the companies, and on the least excuse is either gotten rid of or reduced.

The companies deny this, but the men believe it and many of the sectional strikes, such as that on the Northeastern, are caused more by the general dissatisfaction than by the special occurrence that takes the men out. The men on the Northeastern were not greatly concerned about the reduction of Driver Knox, but they had a general grievance against the company and took the first opportunity of venting it. It is the same with the coal miners. The men in Wales, who made the bitterest fight in the last big strike, are now complaining that the award made on the conclusion of the strike is not being fairly administered and threaten that unless their grievances are remedied they will declare another general strike. And it is likely that they would were it not for the fact that their funds were depleted by the last struggle.
